The D'Oyly Carte Opera Company with the New Promenade Orchestra, conducted by Isidore Godfrey

The Gondoliers was first performed in London in 1889 by the D'Oyly Carte Opera Company. It remains one of the finest and most popular of all the Savoy Operas. Conducted by Isidore Godfrey, the Company's music director, who knew better than most how to get the best out of Sullivan's music, this 1950 recording is an outstanding example of its high standards. The singers were all experts in their rôles, and relished the numerous opportunities for displaying their expertise.
