Wanda Landowska, harpsichord

Recorded from July 1951 to March 1954 in Lakeville, Connecticut (from BWV 870 to BWV 893)
and 2nd May, 1946 in the Lotos Club, New York City (BWV 998)

Wanda Landowska, who continued to perform and record up to her death in 1959, was renowned as the greatest harpsichordist of the first half of the twentieth century. Book II of her recording of Bach's Well-Tempered Clavier was made between 1951 and 1954 at her home in Lakeville Connecticut. As with all of Landowska's recordings, what strikes the listener most is her vitality, her musical integrity, and her total commitment to the music she is playing. Landowska brings a unique mood, style and character to the great Prelude and Fugue in E major which she described as 'one of the most perfect works of music.' Her heartfelt interpretation of the Prelude and Fugue in F sharp minor can be best summed up in her own words: 'When Bach writes of sorrow, it never crushes us. Perhaps because there is no trace of bitterness. This music, even if it describes rebellion or anguish, fortifies us.' Landowska's recording of Book I is available on Naxos 8.110314-15.
