

BO LUNDBY-JÆGER (b. 1964) finds the germ of his chamber music in poetry and in the individual characteristics of the instruments. Poetry is the music's expressive undertone, and the texts – often in serious words – give much of the music its specific content. The five works on the CD are music of simple contrasts between new melodies and old forms, between inward calm and pulsating motion, which together produce a succession of original and straightforward musical experiences.
