AMERICAN CLASSICS

Kenneth Fuchs has written for orchestra, band, chorus, jazz ensemble, and various chamber groups. His first recording for Naxos (8.559224) also featured the London Symphony Orchestra under JoAnn Falletta, as well as the orchestra's principal horn player, Timothy Jones. This meeting inspired Fuchs to write the concerto Canticle to the Sun for Jones and United Artists as a tribute to the orchestra. Two of the works on this recording were inspired by paintings: Autumn Rhythm by Jackson Pollock's famous picture of the same name, and Fire, Ice, and Summer Bronze by Helen Frankenthaler, whose art adorns the cover of this disc.

This recording was made possible, in part, through the generosity of the Aaron Copland Fund for Music Recording, Georges Lurcy Charitable and Educational Trust, Greater Hartford Arts Council, University of Connecticut, and the following individuals: John and Diane Kim, Stephen and Ruth Hendel, Denis and Linda McCarthy, Alan and Joan Ades, John and Jean Lenard, Peter and Hinda Drotch, Ruth Widder, and Leon and Rachel Zelby.
