Orchestral Arrangements of He Luting's Classics

He Luting

He Luting (1903-1999) was among the leading Chinese musicians of his generation, distinguished as a composer and as a teacher. His piano piece The Buffalo Boy's Little Flute, written in 1934, was awarded first prize in a national musical competition sponsored by the Russian born composer Alexander Tcherepnin. This success led to his involvement in composition for the cinema. In 1949 he was appointed director of the Shanghai Conservatory. The nine orchestral pieces recorded in this collection are all orchestrated from He Luting's songs and other compositions.
