THE STORIES OF FOSTER (1826-1864) AND SOUSA (1854-1932)

DID YOU KNOW...

As American as apple pie.

Several of Foster's songs became so popular that they are thought to be folksongs and not by anyone in particular.

A poor businessman, Foster let his most famous song be published with someone else's name as composer.

John Philip Sousa had an instrument manufactured to his own specifications. Do you know it's name?

Though known as "The March King," Sousa wrote many operettas and other pieces of music besides those for which he is famous.

The Stars and Stripes Forever, America's best-known march, came to Sousa in a dream while crossing the Atlantic.

Narrated by Allin Robinson and Arthur Hannes

SPECIAL BONUS: Following the stories of the lives and music of Foster and Sousa, you will hear an additional bonus of 6 complete Marches by John Philip Sousa
