

The Great Poets John Masfield

Read by Ronald Pickup

John Masfield (1878–1967) was one of the most prolific, popular and successful poets of the twentieth century. Masfield broke upon Edwardian literature with the startling work entitled The Everlasting Mercy, which described the spiritual enlightenment of a drunken poacher. Over the span of his lifetime, he was appointed Poet Laureate and amassed a large number of admirers, which included such high-profile names as John Betjeman, Robert Graves and W.B. Yeats.

This collection contains thirty-six poems and spans Masfield's entire career. There are early poems from Salt-Water Ballads (1902) and Ballads (1903), followed by extracts from the narrative poems The Everlasting Mercy, Dauber and Reynard the Fox. The selection also includes a number of sonnets including 'On Growing Old', as well as his poetry on the Romans, alongside a number of rarities.

Ronald Pickup works extensively in both stage and screen productions. His recent film work includes The Best Exotic Marigold Hotel and Prince of Persia: Sands of Time. He has also appeared in the television series Parade's End, Larkrise to Candleford, Fortunes of War and Orwell on Jura. His theatre credits include Heartbreak House, Waiting for Godot, Uncle Vanya, Peer Gynt and Long Day's Journey Into Night.
