Henry James

The Wings of the Dove

Read by William Hope

Milly Theale is a young, beautiful, and fabulously wealthy American. When she arrives in London and meets the equally beautiful, but impoverished Kate Croy, they form an intimate friendship. But nothing is as it seems; materialism, romance, self-delusion, and ultimately fatal illness, insidiously contaminate the glamorous social whirl.

Though American by birth, William Hope trained at RADA and has appeared in theatre on both sides of the Atlantic throughout his career. His TV and film work have been similarly extensive and have included roles in Aliens (Gorman) and The Lords of Discipline. A former member of the BBC Radio Drama Company, he is regularly heard on radio in both plays and books. He also reads Ethan Frome, The Great Gatsby and The Last of the Mohicans for Naxos AudioBooks.
