

TOCC 0601

This second volume of orchestral music by the Swiss composer Richard Flury (1896–1967) opens with a lively suite drawn from an early Festspiel – a community pageant. Flury was a gifted violinist, and his unashamedly Romantic Third Violin Concerto, written at the height of the Second World War, is virtuosic and lyrical in equal measure. The four late Caprices for violin and orchestra form a concertante serenade in all but name; and one of his very last pieces was a dark and moving tribute to a musician friend, the slow movement of a suite he did not live to finish.
